

Angie Giancarlo, Professional Staff Member, U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works

Angie Giancarlo is a Professional Staff Member with the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works. She first joined the Committee staff in 1999. In addition to the environment and planning aspects of transportation policy, her portfolio of issues currently includes the Army Corps of Engineers and related water resources policy, general NEPA oversight, and economic development issues. Angie earned her Bachelors degree in political science from the George Washington University.